EXPORT HIGH WATER MARK. Last Fiscal Year the Largest in the Country's History. Tables about to be published by the of Statistics in connection with the monthly summary of finance and comwill show that the fiscal year ended June 3c was the largest in the history of domestic exports, the value of which resemed $1,032,001,300. The next largest was the year 1892, when they amounted to $1,015,732,011. The increase over exports of the preceding year amounts to $168,800,813,

There has been a considerable increase in the exports of domestic manufactures. Comparing these with the year 1892, the largest previous export year, when they were valued at $158,510,937, or 15.6 per cent of the whole, the year 1897 shows that they amounted to $276,357,861, or 26.78 per cent of the total exports, which is an increase over the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, of $47,786.683. The smallest previous per cent was in 1880, when the percentage of domestic manufactures exported was 12.45 of the whole, of June exported were valued at $25,-873.204, an increase of about $4,066, 000 over the same month of the preceding year, and the figures for June, 1897, are the largest for any similar period ex-cept the month of May, 1897, when the value of demestic exports amounted to $25,457,442, and the month of March, 1897, when they were $25,874,459.

The exports of agricultural products for the month of June were valued at $36,-898,895, as against $37,178,090 for the month of June, 1896. Agricultural exports for June, 1896, were 57.26 per cent and for June, 1897, 54.26 per cent of all exports. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, the value of agricultural experts amounted to $569,879,297, or 66.02 per cent of the whole, as against $683.878,900. 66.27 per cent of the whole, for the value of all exports for the year 1896 amounted to $865,200,487, while for the year just ended the total, given as stated gbove, amounts to $1,032,001,300.

Eighty-fifth Pennsylvania Volregiment, and not engaged, and seeing a comrade wounded in the advance line, went forward without orders, under a beavy fire, and brought off the wounded Private Morrison was three times wounded in battle."

The Ridgely Assault Case. To the Editor of The Times:

In the evening edition of The Times, under date of August 2, and captioned "Another Brute Escapes," and, also, in the morning edition and date of August earline, "Wanted By the Police," was sold the story of the belnous criminal assault upon my eight-year-old little daugh-ter by the libertine and villain, Henry Ridgely, whose arrest has not yet been effected. The story as narrated in the evening edition, in the main, is true, and places the responsibility for the scoundrel's escape just where it belongs.

The crime was committed on the 20th uition, and, owing to the threat of the of the child, neither I nor my wife was uch a thing had happened until the night of the 23d. I immediately sought to have the scoundrel arrested, but was told by the officer in charge ut No. 2 station that a warrant was absolutely necessary to make the arrest, and this could be secured only through the derk of the court. This decision buffled further efforts until the next morn ing, when I went to interview Mr. Muilowny and secure through him the war-

At first Mr. Mullowny discouraged me In ouring the warrant, citing as reasons that it was so hard to make out a case to such complaints, announcing that many such complaints had been brought to his atten-tion in the past three years in which not a single conviction was secured. But I persisted and he gave me the warrant I asked criminal assault, but too late to accomplish any good.

The compromise spoken of is all bosh. No such thing was ever suggested to me, nor would I entertain it. A string judge and a deliberating jury can alone satisfy the outrage upon my family, and the in nocence of my little daughter. I hope this dispels the truth of the charge of tardiness on my part, and places the responsibility where it belongs, for the laxity of the lax and latitude of criminals which, should it continue, will make our city a hades and our boasted civilization a travesty. There is something wrong somewhere, and we, the law-abiding citizens, hope The Times will make the discovery

An Expert's Opinion of Mr. Me-Kinley's Civil Service Order.

GENUINE REFORM IN SIGHT

Permanence and Discipline Established on a Firm Basts-A Decided Step in the Desired Direction-Views of Secretary McAneny of the National League.

Mr. George McAneny, secretary of the Sational Civil Service Reform League, has prepared a statement relative to the recent order of the President amending the civil service rules. Mr. McAneny says; "The new rule requiring that no renoval shall be made from a position subject to competitive examination except for just cause, and upon written charges, of which the accused shall have full notice and an opportunity to make defense, Will have a fer-reaching application. It will apply to every officer and employe in the departments at Washington, excepting officers confirmed by the Senate, certain attorneys in the Department of Justice, a few private secretaries and the common Inborers. "In the great local offices, such as the New York custom house and postoffice, it will apply to all between the extremes of officers confirmed by the Senate and latorers, except the principal deputy or as-sistant and the carbier. In the case of each office or employment affected it will mean that the incumbent shall not be re-moved except for reasons having to do with the good of the service, that have nothing to do with politics of religion, and that may be safely put in writing. An officer having the power to remove will hesitate to assign reasons that are frivolous or unjust, and the officer of employe, of whatever rank, willenjoy a reasonable degree of security so long as his services conti be meritorious. On the other hand, it is a mistake to suppose that the discretion of the department head is to be unduly limit ed, or that there will be the slightest difficulty in getting rid of an objectionable sub "The new rule provides for no form of trial. Nor is the action of the depart-ment officer subject to review by any other executive authority. All that is required in that the reasons for his action shall be a matter of record, and that if the person removed wishes to be heard before his case is finally adjudicated be may have a fair opportunity. Unless the reasons are sufficient the department officer will best tate to file them, and if the person removed knows that they are good he will hesitate to dispute them. This is a very simple plan compared with the court-martial of the Army or Navy, or the elaborate and somewhat bothersome trial system of the municipal police and fire departments. That it is quite sufficient, however, both to protect the meritorious employes and to permit the maintenance of proper discipline has been proven by experience. A similar rule has been in operation in the Postoffice Department, applying to clerks and carriers, for three years past. There it has worked with absolute satisfaction. "The new order has the force of law, and it goes into effect at once. Any officer who disabeys it must, under the provisions of civil service rule No. 2, be dismissed from the service. The humediate result will be both to prevent all removals for political reasons, and to put a stop to the practice of putting out one man merely to make a place for another who may happen to be eligible either for certification under the rules or for reinstatement. The Adminis-tration has sinned a little in each of these respects, but the action of the President, coming thus early in his term, is the strongest possible guarantee for the future The new order will protect a certain number of political appointees of the pre-ceding Administration, but not nearly so tensions of May 6, 1896, covered 30,082 consciousness of power which assures suc-positions; 5,063 of these were employes cess, their education has been a failure, of the navy yards who had been placed der merit rules by Secretary Tracy, in 1891, and whose classification as part of the general system was a mere formality; 5,025 were employes of the lighthouse and life-saving services, and other Treasury branches, that had been previously subject to separate examination systems, and were non-political: 2,061 were Indians employed in the Indian service and excepted from competition, 6,256 were mechanics, engineers, etc., in the engineering and ordnance bureaus of the War Department, also nonpolitical, and 4,120 were pension examining surgeons, paid by fees. "Of the remaining 8,500, many other, classes had not been affected by political changes. It may safely be said that not more than 5,000 officers on the entire list had been appointed for political reasons, and then classified, including the division chiefs. Of the positions classified before May, 1896, the most important were those in the Government Printing Office, Sixtyne per cent of those in that office at the date of classification had been left there Mr. Pahner.. It is well that these facts should be understood clearly, not only because it is fairer to Mr. Cleveland, but in order that it may not be charged against Mr. McKinley that he has given his protection to any considerable number of am ployes who, from one point of view, might not be entitled to it. "The fact that President McKinley has extended a reasonable protection to these appointees of Mr. Cleveland who do remain in the service, as well as to all others, seems to me in the highest degree creditable. The whole subordinate service is now in a fair way to reach the basts of permanence and good discipline that is essential to the best administration, and the President, in adding to the system of appointment for merit the guar antee of retention for merit, has made that hasis possible. He has done, in fact, what Mr. Cleveland, toward the close of his first term, declined to do. During the latter part of 1887, a revision of the rules, changing the plan of dissification and extending its scope, was prepared by the Civil Service Commission. When this revision was submitted to the President it contained the following:

"Whenever a dismissal from the exccutive civil service is made, a written statement of the cause of the dismissal must be filed in the department or office from which the dismissal is made, and become a part of the records of such department or office.' "The revision was approved with the exception of this rule, to which Mr. Cleve-band objected on the ground that the power of removal should not be restricted even to the limited degree proposed. The framthe same idea. The Cartis commission in 1872 reported to the President that it memed to them more desirable to afford a rea-sonable security of permanence in office by depriving the head of illegitimate motivi tions, 'unless it can be shown from the nature of the system that the power of removal is likely to be removed. Experience has shown that even under the limitations of the competitive appointment 1897.

ystem the removing power is abused. It was this fact that prompted the commis Cleveland. Since 1888 it has frequently nade the same recommendation to other Presidents, but it has been left for Mr. McKinley to take the decisive step. "Or far greater consequence than the nciusion of new classes is the virtual announcement the President makes that the xisting classification will remain practically unimpaired. During the past five conths the demand for a modifying order as been clamorous and unremitting

"Probably on no other Executive has so great an amount of pressure been brought in the hope of accomplishing a single object. How well the pressure has been resisted is now quite apparent. Finally, by way of answer, we have the order of July 27. The President fulfills his pledges literally He declares that he will maintain the law rather than weaken it, and that ustend of Hunting its operation he will extend it where extension is practical. suggestion that Mr. McKinley settled on this policy only after he had noticed the popular disapproval with which re-ports of his intention to do otherwise had been received is quite unfair to him. I have had several interviews with the President on this subject during the -past few months. "On the 2:1 day of July, a week be fore these reports were published, he assured me positively that no changes of a rious character would be made, and that the exceptions other than those recommended by the Civil Service Commission would be confined to isolated cases, in which, owing to peculiar circumstances, an exception might be necessary. When again saw him on the 24th he spoke in he same encouraging way, adding that he would seek to improve and extend the system rather than to restrict it.

"I do not believe that any time since the 4th of March the President has intended to do anything but what he now has one. I believe, moreover, that with the order of July 27 as an earnest of Mr. Mc Kinley's disposition and purposes, it is to be expected that this Administration will carry the reform of the civil service very near to completion, and that for that ac complishment it will be remembered his

SCHOOLS FOR THE SIOUX

A Superintendent's Views on the Culture of Indians.

Elders Take Pride to the Education of the Young-Report Their Conduct at Home.

Beatrice B. Sonderegger, superintendent of the Indian Industrial Boarding School at Standing Rock Agency, N. D., has some

In a recent talk with the superintendent of Indian schools she set forth that the work done at her school was based on the principle that the test of education should be efficiency. She said: "By efficiency, I do not mean the mere knowledge of facts or the mere skill to do one thing or another more or less well. Efficiency, as I under stand it, is the power to use head, hand, and heart intelligently and successfully in whatever position or anid whatever environment one may be placed. I think It is the part of educators to develop and guide and to promote the growth of the powers of head, hand, and heart of their pupils from earliest childhood, until they have grown strong enough to continue their Work independently without directions from others."

Miss Sonderegger regards no pupil a suc cess who, having started out in life under the care and supervision of his or her edu cators, after a reasonable time is not de-termined and able to go on for himself or If these girls and boys have not learned to help themselves; to make the best of their environment; to think and reason, and to apply their knowledge to difmany as most people suppose—and none as ferent circumstances; to set to work with all who are incompetent or unfit. The ex-however "high" It may have carried then Hence the teaching in all the departments of the Standing Rock School pursues the distinct and definite aim to get the pupils to think and reason for themselves; to the knowledge acquired to a practical use. first, under the guidance of teachers, and then independently for themselves. This purpose underlies all the work done in the schoolroom, the sewing room, the kitchen, the bakery and the laundry. Every vaca-tion is made use of to reach the Indian pupils in their homes.

Another unusual thing which Miss Sonderegger said to the Indian school superintendent was: "I measure each year's progress of the school by the results manifested by the pupils during vacation, when most of them are at their homes. What tion is more to us than all the good deportment and showy attainments displayed during the school year. The vacation outs to test the pupil's growing power to see, to do, and to resist."

Miss Sonderegger said that the Sioux Indians seem to appreciate the value of education. They, with a few exceptions, take gride in bringing their children to They eagerly watch their progress, and after vacation report how their ohil-dren conducted themselves at home.
